Contents

Tables, Maps, and Figures
Tables, Maps, and Figures
Tables, Maps, and Figures are included to enhance the understanding of the content and provide additional data that is referenced throughout the text. They are organized alphabetically and cover various aspects of the research, including historical timelines, geographical distributions, and statistical analyses.

Notes to the Reader
Notes to the Reader
Notes to the Reader serve as a guide for the reader, providing important information about the context, methodology, and limitations of the study. They are included to help readers navigate the content and understand the nuances of the research.

1. Introduction: The Sibao Book Trade and Qing Society
   - The Expansion of Commercial Publishing in the Qing
   - Sources for the Study of Sibao Publishing-Bookselling

2. The Setting: Minxi and Sibao
   - Minxi
   - Sibao and the Zou and Ma Lineages

3. The Origins of Publishing and the Production of Books in Sibao
   - The Beginnings of Publishing in Wuge and Mawu
   - The History of the Zou and Ma Publishing houses: An Overview
   - Producing Books in Sibao
   - Conclusion

4. The Structure of the Sibao Publishing Industry
   - Publishing Houses as Household Industries Within the Zou and Ma Lineages
   - The Income from Publishing-Bookselling
   - The Use of Earnings

---

Part I
The Business of Book Publishing and Bookselling in Sibao
The Business of Book Publishing and Bookselling in Sibao
The Business of Book Publishing and Bookselling in Sibao illuminates the intricate network of book production and distribution in the Sibao region during the Qing dynasty. It delves into the historical context, the economic significance, and the organizational structures that supported the commercial publishing industry. The book offers a comprehensive analysis of the publishing houses, their operations, and the broader social implications of their activities.
Contents

5  “We are all brothers”: Household Division, the Proliferation of Publishing Houses, and the Management of Competition 159

   Family Division and the Development of New Publishing Houses 161
   Managing Inter-Lineage Competition 186

6  Sibao Bookselling Routes 189

   The Book Market in Sibao 190
   Bookselling Networks Outside Sibao 192
   The Pattern of Sibao Bookselling: Why They Went Where They Went 206
   Conclusion 230

7  Sojourning Bookselling and the Operation of the Branch Shops 235

   Life on the Road: Itinerant Bookselling 236
   Branch Bookstores 252

8  Sibao’s “Confucian Merchants” in Minxi Society and the Late Imperial Economy 268

   “Confucian Merchants”: The Image of the Sibao Publisher-Booksellers 269
   The Zou and Ma Publishing Families as Local Gentry 275
   The Sibao Publisher-Booksellers in the Late Imperial Economy 287

Part II

Sibao Imprints

9  The Nature and Sources of Sibao Imprints 305

   Overview of Sibao’s Output 306
   The Sources of Sibao Texts 309

10 Educational Works 321

   Primers and Glossaries for Beginning Students 326
   Beyond “Primer Literacy”: Supplemental Texts for Elementary Education 349
   Textbooks for Composition 358
   Poetry Anthologies and Manuals 367
   The Heart of the Curriculum: The Classics 374
   Beyond the Four Books and Five Classics 396
   Conclusion 402

11 Guides to Good Manners, Good Health, and Good Fortune 410

   Household Encyclopedias and Guides to the Rituals of Daily Life 411
   Medical and Pharmaceutical Manuals 428
   Guides
Contents

12 Fiction and Belles-Lettres
   Fiction 478/ Drama and Songbooks 499/ The Elite Arts:
   Poetry Collections and Calligraphy and Painting Albums 506/
   Conclusion 510

13 Sibao’s Customers and Popular Textual Culture in the Qing
   Audience and the Prices of Sibao Imprints 513/ The Production
   Quality of Sibao Imprints 519/ Sibao and Popular Textual
   Culture 523/ The Stability of Sibao’s Popular Canon 529

14 The Diffusion of Print Culture in Qing China
   Sibao in Context: Other Commercial Publishing Sites of the Qing 536/ The Circulation of Texts in the Qing 548/ The Book Cultures of the Qing 553/ Literacy, Social Status, and Political Power 559

Appendices

A Transport Routes Within the Min-Gan-Yue Region 573
B Value of Woodblocks from the Juxian tang and Dawen
tang, 1897 577
C Genealogical Charts 578
D Sibao Publishing Houses and Publisher-Booksellers*
E Sites of Sibao Bookselling and the Zou and Ma Booksellers*
F Sites of Zou and Ma Migration in the Qing*
G List of Sibao Imprints*

Reference Matter

Works Cited 603
Index 637

*These appendixes are available online on the website of the Harvard University Asia Center at www.fas.harvard.edu/~asiactr. They can be downloaded and printed out for free.