Courses at HGSE. The Ed School offers 8 modules and seven courses during January Term. For some of these, you must apply (via the course website’s instructions) by November 12 for full consideration. The other courses and modules are open for enrollment with no application in my.harvard.edu until December 2).

Courses Offered through Cross-Registration. HKS, Law, Public Health, and MIT offer modules and courses through cross-registration. Admission and enrollment processes vary by school. Harvard course information can be found at: https://my.harvard.edu. MIT course information can be found at: https://courses.harvard.edu/crossregistration.html.

Tuition. January Term for-credit offerings are included in full-time HGSE students’ Spring semester tuition.

Taking More Than One Course. Students are encouraged to take one January Term course or module. Students may choose to enroll in more than one module during January Term if the faculty members of the modules they plan to take allow students to take additional modules concurrently, but under no circumstances will students be permitted to miss class meetings due to a conflict of class times. Students may enroll in no more than 4 credits during January Term.

Noncredit Workshops and Seminars. HGSE also offers “hands-on, minds-on” noncredit learning experiences, taught by faculty and practitioner experts, that emphasize active learning, professional skill-building, personal development, and exploration of ideas and topics complementing the Ed School’s for-credit offerings. Take more than one; that’s how we’ve designed it! These noncredit experiences take place at various points, with many concentrated during the period of January 22-24, to maximize access to students who do not take a January Term course earlier in the month. Offerings and descriptions are subject to change. Sign up starting November 22 at hgse.me/januaryterm.

Other Noncredit Learning Experiences. Focus on your career planning and job search, and much more. Some workshops may have a special December 2 sign-up deadline, and a few may be limited in size. Sign up starting November 22 at hgse.me/januaryterm.
